New Agreement for Non-Academic Staff

Last Wednesday, 19 March, members of the University's Non-Academic Staff Association formally ratified a tentative agreement reached on 6 March by the Association's and the University's negotiating teams. Due to come into effect on 1 April 1980 for one calendar year, the salient points of the agreement are an 8.6 percent increase in pay rates over those in effect at the end of this month and a dental plan for all regular and full-time continuing term employees and their dependants. The details of this dental plan, which is described as "comprehensive and employer-funded," will be agreed upon mutually by the Association and the Board of Governors.

In addition to these main features of the new agreement, there are a host of amendments to features contained in the present agreement. For example, full-time employees will now be entitled to the following holidays with pay: New Year's Day, Good Friday, Victoria Day, 30 June 1980, Labour Day, Christmas Day, Boxing Day, and a "Christmas floater." The "Christmas floater" will be observed in such a way that, including the weekend, employees will be away from work for five consecutive days. Also, an employee who has completed seventeen full years' service will now receive twenty-five working days' holiday in the vacation year in which he completes eighteen full years of service. Similarly, one who has completed twenty-four full years' service will be eligible for thirty working days of paid vacation in the year in which he completes twenty-five full years of service to this institution.

These are only a few of the details of the new agreement, however. For more information, an employee should refer to his Association representative or contact NASA at 9202 112 Street, telephone 439-3181.

In the new letter sent to all members of the Association shortly after the tentative agreement had been reached, there was an error that should be corrected. Item 13(f) on page two of that release should have read "... he may be required to work more than five (5) but not more than seven (7) days in succession, but he shall not be required to work more than ten (10) working days in any two-week period." □

Physical Fitness: "Everybody's Getting Into the Act"

If you have not been in to the Physical Education and Recreation Centre for a while, stop in and get ready for a surprise. This used to be the preserve of the athletic set but not any more. With the wide interest in physical fitness, the gymnasiums and swimming pools are alive with people you would never have suspected of having athletic pretensions. Regular physical activity has become part of the lives of many campus people who are active purely for the benefits of good feelings and a slim attractive figure.

The business lunch has been replaced with the joggers meeting and any early morning can find a mixture of campus executives and staff jogging on the hockey rink balcony while engaged in animated conversation. (Fitness does strange things to people.) The gym bag and the squash racquet now vie with the bulging brief cases as the mark of a productive person. If you listen to the converted fitness buffs they'll extoll the benefits of fitness (ad nauseum their lethargic colleagues say) and the good effects it has had on their productivity.

Physical fitness is here to stay. Belying its trendy beginnings in the early 1970s, the fitness fad has become a movement of national proportions. Dare one say a movement movement? A look at the variety of people who are into fitness reveals its wide appeal. One constant theme in their comments is that regular exercise is a common sense feature of their lives. Here are a few campus regulars:

Bob Middleditch—Faculty of Arts—is a charter member of the “Early Bird Fitness” program. He says “I find the early morning exercises sets me up for the whole day. When I miss, I really notice it.”

Alice Glassford—Cameron Library—“Most of us don’t get enough exercise and become very sedentary in mind as well as body. Regular exercise is an essential part of my life.”

Larry Davidson—Personnel—“I can maintain a reasonable level of fitness in the exercise program. Exercise in a group is a good way to get me out regularly.”

Mabel Ferguson—Department of Psychiatry—An Early Bird original, now in her third year, says, “It makes me come alive. The fact of exercising in a group makes it so much easier to stay with it.”

Frances Mielke—Rutherford Library—“I seem to feel better when I exercise regularly. It’s easier to work through the day when you feel good.”

This coming April the Faculty of Physical Education and Alice Glassford is less sedentary than most of us.

Recreation, Department of Athletic Services will be offering their “Spring Tune Up” fitness program starting 14 April. Fitness classes for beginners or veteran fitness buffs will be offered along with a set of short clinics for people who would like to learn how to be fit without having to attend a regular class. Watch for the campus wide mailing of course information and registration forms. □

Pigeons: The Last Post

■ I have followed your articles on the pigeon problem with fascination but am surprised that the most logical and humane solution has not yet been proposed. I have that solution.

While working in Southeast Asia I was impressed by the artistic array of appetizers served at official functions. Among these were hard boiled pigeon eggs daintily balanced on colored toothpicks. They looked darlin’, tasted delicious and were just bite size.

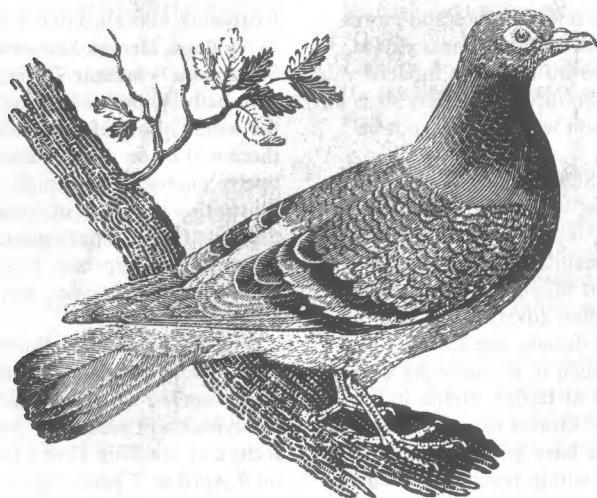

By now you have guessed the answer. Collect the pigeon eggs daily, boil them and serve them at the Faculty Club. It would be best if they were introduced at a Dean’s luncheon so they could thus be officially endorsed as a gourmet’s delight. With such a prestigious sales pitch soon the University would not be able to keep up with the public demand for pigeon eggs. It would not only be cost effective but it would cut the pigeon birth rate to zero.

The old birds would gradually die off and soon the only reminder of the former feathered inhabitants would be a few white streaks on the walls of Athabasca Hall. Of course no solution is entirely satisfactory. There would no doubt be complaints, from those who had become addicted, about the high cost of imported pigeon eggs.

K. Dier,
Faculty of Nursing

Editor’s note: During the last few weeks, the University community’s response to the plight of the occupants of, and visitors to, Athabasca Hall has been heartwarming. In fact, Folio has received more reaction about this topic than about any other topic discussed in its pages for at least the last three years. The same is true for the news media off campus, which have shown an unusual (and gratifying?) interest in this particular problem. Now, however, (at least for the moment) “Pigeon Post” is closed. What other topics are of importance to members of the University? It has been suggested the Folio stir up interest in the increasing number of cars and trucks which currently penetrate the quadrangle to the north of the Administration Building. For example, do Scheduled Distribution and other University vehicles really need to force pedestrians off the sidewalks into the slush and snow? What about the persistent, glass shattering vandalism on the bridge between

SUB and the Stadium Carpark? What about the budget for 1980-81? In a university community, there are surely many topics to stir men's hearts, whether fanciful or serious. We would appreciate receiving your letters and, when possible, the opportunity to air your concerns. □

Ring House Gallery Exhibitions in April

The University's Ring House Gallery (opposite the Faculty Club just off Saskatchewan Drive) is frequently host to circulating exhibitions organized by institutions in other parts of Canada. Also, the Gallery supports the work of artists here in Alberta and is well known for its encouragement of local artistic expression. From the last week in March, then, and throughout April, both these facets of the Ring House Gallery's operations will come into play.

Already, from 24 March, the exhibition "Reflections of India" has attracted the attention of inveterate "gallery goers." This exhibition, organized by the Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto, in honor of the tenth anniversary of the Shastri Indo-Canadian Institute, comprises a collection of miniature painting from the sub-continent. Viewers of these miniatures can enter a world now lost to us—sixteenth and nineteenth century India—a world, perhaps, only restored for most of us in story books and Alexander Korda films. The paintings yield insights into attitudes and mores which, though no longer extant, still bear influence on modern Indian culture and society. It is an exhibition which should not be missed.

The Shastri Indo-Canadian Institute, which the exhibition honors, is an educational enterprise established in 1968 with the joint support of the Canadian and Indian governments. During the last decade, the Institute has done much to promote the development of Indian studies in Canada. Grants to universities and libraries have put Indian publications within reach of Canadian scholars and a Fellowship Program has enabled such scholars to travel to India to carry out language training and a variety of research endeavors. "Reflections of India" closes on 18 April.

A second and quite different exhibition will coincide with "Reflections of India." This display, "The Evolution of the Constructed Relief, 1913-1979," (2 to 27 April) surveys the development of constructivist art through the greater part of this century. Organized by Ron Kostyniuk, an Associate Professor at the University of Calgary, artists to be represented include David Barr, Charles Biederman, Eli Bornstein, Jean Gorin, Ron Kostyniuk himself, Gino Lorcini, Terry Pope, Henryk Stazewski, Jurij Strutynsky, Vladimir Tatlin, and Elizabeth Willmott. In addition to the works of art of these notables, there will be on display also twelve photographic panels illustrating the work of some of the constructed relief's pioneers, Alexander Archipenko, Naum Gabo, Antoine Pevsner, and Vladimir Tatlin.

To supplement the exhibition, and to make the constructed relief more familiar to viewers, Ron Kostyniuk will present a slide-lecture at the Ring House Gallery on 9 April at 7 p.m. Also, a 104 page paperback with twenty color pages and essays by Kostyniuk, John Bowlt, and Joost Baljeau will be available at the Gallery for a sum of $7. "The Evolution of the Constructed Relief, 1913-1979" will be on display until 27 April.

The Ring House Gallery welcomes members of the public and the University community. Its hours of opening are from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. (weekdays), 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. (Thursdays), and from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. (Sundays). For further information about the exhibitions described here, or about any of the Gallery's other activities, please telephone 432-5834. □

"Portrait of a Ruler" Rajput, Punjab Hills, perhaps at Basohli, ca 1700. One of the paintings included in the Reflections on India exhibition at the Ring House Gallery.

Research in Aging Seminar

The Alberta Council on Aging in cooperation with the Senior Citizens Bureau, Alberta Social Services and Community Health, will host a one-day seminar on 20 June 1980. The seminar will be concerned with, and will present, research currently in progress in the broad field of aging. It will be held in the Kerby Centre in Calgary.

Submissions, therefore, are invited from people involved in research into any aspect of the field of aging, whether their work has been completed or is still in progress. Abstract forms for people wishing to present papers at the seminar are available from Sharon Abu-Laban in the Department of Sociology, telephone 432-5234. All abstracts will be made subject to review and are due no later than 1 May 1980. □

Pragmatic Pediatrics for the Practitioner

The Department of Pediatrics, the Division of Continuing Medical Education, and the Misericordia Hospital are co-sponsoring the eighth annual post-graduate pediatrics course to be held 23, 24, and 25 April. The program will cover a wide range of subjects within the topic areas of adolescence, ambulatory care, and infectious diseases. For information contact the Division of Continuing Medical Education, The University of Alberta, Edmonton, T6G 2G3. □

Sir Andrew Huxley to Present Lectures

The distinguished Sir Andrew Huxley, FRS, will present the Walter C. MacKenzie Professorship Lectures on 8 and 9 April.

A research Professor with the Department of Physiology at University College London England, Sir Andrew will give his first lecture at 4 p.m. on 8 April on "Old and New Theories of Muscle Contraction." His second address on 9 April at 4 p.m., will be "Cross-Bridge Mechanics in Skeletal Muscle."

Both lectures will take place in Room 2-115 of the Education Building. There will be no admission charge and both lectures are open to the public. □

NATO Advanced Study Institute

"Generalized Concavity in Optimization and Economics" is the topic of this conference. The purpose of the Institute is to bring together researchers from various disciplines and introduce them to generalized concavity, and its applications in optimization and economics. The NATO

Institute is supported by, among others, the Faculty of Business Administration and Commerce, University of Alberta. The conference is to be held in Vancouver 4 to 15 August. For information contact the NATO Advanced Study Institute, Vancouver, B.C. □

CSA Distinguished Service Award

Ernie Ingram, Education Administration, recently was selected by the Council on School Administration (CSA) as the recipient of the CSA Distinguished Service Award as Administrator of the Year, at the system or institutional level. The award will be presented to Dr. Ingram at the Annual Conference Awards Banquet to be held at the North Hill Inn in Red Deer on Thursday 24 April.

In the late 1950s Dr. Ingram was appointed as the Alberta Teachers' Association professional officer in charge of Professional Development. As the first person ever to hold this position, he was instrumental in the organization of Specialist Councils and particularly influential in the inception of the Council on School Administration in the early 1960s.

The professional development of educators has been a continuing interest of Dr. Ingram. He has devoted a great amount of time and energy to working on the CSA executive both as President (1976-77) and as Director of Leadership Seminars. In large measure it is due to the efforts of Dr. Ingram that there are so many teachers/administrators in this province who are aware that continuing professional development is an integral part of their professional responsibilities. Probably more than any other educator in this province, he has worked to provide that linkage between practice and theory which is the essential component of educational progress. □

Sic Transit . . .

The following snippet of reassuring information for Edmonton Transit users was contained in a news release issued on 6 March by Edmonton Transit's central administration:

"Each year, Edmonton Transit and the City of Edmonton salute the transit operators who drove Transit vehicles a complete year without a preventable accident."

Luckily, in 1979 there were 544 such operators. □

Register of Research Directors, 1980 Edition

Attention: Deans of Faculties, Directors of Institutes and Centres, Chairmen of Departments, and Research Directors. Your assistance is required for updating the above Register. The Register serves the following purposes: (a) Aids the Research Grants Officer in referring requests from Federal, Provincial, Municipal, and Industrial sources for research proposals to the appropriate Research Directors for their consideration; (b) Furnishes Federal and Provincial Governments, Academic bodies, and Institutions, and other bona fide enquirers with current and accurate information about Research Directors and their interests. For example, in addition to the Research Grants and Contracts Office, updated copies of the Theatre

The Citadel Theatre

The Rice Theatre

Continuing. "Macbeth."

The Shoctor Theatre

Continuing. "Arms and the Man."

Studio Theatre

Continuing. The Murder of Auguste Dupin." Performance in Studio Theatre Stage '80, Corbett Hall.

Register are required for:

- i. Alberta Advanced Education and Manpower—Science and Research Advisory Committee;
- ii. The Association of Commonwealth Universities, London, England;
- iii. The Canadian Plains Research Centre, University of Regina, Regina, Saskatchewan;
- iv. The University of Alberta Office of Community Relations; and
- v. The University of Alberta Reference Services, Humanities and Social Sciences Library, Rutherford North.

In order that you may continue to be represented in this Register of Research Directors, or be listed for the first time, you are requested, where applicable, to update your previous submission, and complete a new form RGO4-77, which you will receive by mail. Please type and return the original, since we have to reproduce this sheet.

The Summary of Current Research and Objectives (75-150 words) should be written in a plain style so it may be readily understood by non-specialists who may consult the Register. On the other hand, the key words/descriptors may be as technical and professional as is necessary to convey to colleagues the nature and aims of your research.

If, by chance, you do not receive the above form telephone the Research Grants and Contracts Office at 432-2002. The completed forms should be returned to the Research Grants and Contracts Office, 3-31 University Hall, by 15 April 1980.
